Greetings,

I am writing to tell you about two internationally important moot court competitions we will be hosting at the Sturm College of Law this coming spring semester. I hope you will be able to participate in one or both of these events.

As you know, moot court competitions are an invaluable experience for students, and hosting these rounds is an excellent way for us to showcase DU Law’s strength in both International Law and Environmental and Natural Resources Law.

On January 24 and 25, 2014 we will be hosting the US Regional Rounds of the 18th Annual Stetson International Environmental Moot Court Competition. We will be welcoming 12 teams from around the country who will participate in a total of 6 rounds throughout the competition—4 preliminary rounds, a semi-final round, and a final round. We will need the help of over 85 attorneys to judge rounds for the competition.

From February 14 through the 16, 2014 we will again be hosting the Rocky Mountain Regional Rounds of the Philip C. Jessup International Moot Competition. We will welcome 23 teams from around the country who will participate in a total of 7 rounds throughout the entire weekend—4 preliminary rounds, a quarter-final round, a semi-final round, and a final round. For this competition, we will need the help of over 150 judges.

Please help us by volunteering to judge in one or both of these competitions. As a judge, you will be provided with a comprehensive bench memo explaining the problem and proposing the kinds of questions you could ask, so you do not have to be a subject matter expert. If you are able, please sign up for more than one round; volunteers may also sign up to judge as many or as few rounds as they wish.

If you are willing to participate, please fill out this survey of availability. We will then contact you closer to the event to confirm your participation.

Thank you for your continued support of our programs.
Sincerest regards,

Annecoos Wiersema
