AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSES

1. Plaintiffs have failed to make pre-suit demand upon the Disney Board of Directors as required by Chancery Court Rule 23.1 in order to pursue their claim.

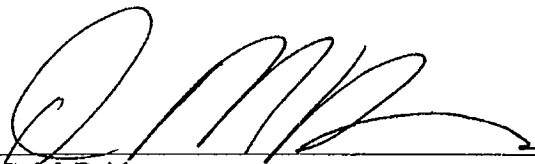

2. Prior to institution of this action, and for valuable consideration, nominal defendant Disney released Mr. Ovitz from all claims related to his tenure at Disney. As such, derivative plaintiffs' claims are barred.

3. On October 16, 1995, the Compensation Committee of nominal defendant Disney approved the terms of the OEA subject to "such reasonable further negotiations...as may be approved by the Chief Executive Officer of the Walt Disney Company." As such, Disney has waived its right to bring suit against Mr. Ovitz for breaching his duties based on any changes made to the terms of his employment that were approved by Mr. Eisner. Derivative plaintiffs' claims are barred.

4. Nominal defendant Disney negotiated a compensation package to induce Mr. Ovitz to relinquish his position at Creative Artists Agency. It is now equitably estopped from claiming Mr. Ovitz breached his fiduciary duties by accepting that compensation package. As such, derivative plaintiffs' claim relating to Mr. Ovitz's negotiation of the OEA is barred.

5. Nominal defendant Disney agreed with Mr. Ovitz to treat his departure from his position as President of Disney as a Non-Fault Termination to induce him to relinquish his post. It is now equitably estopped from claiming Mr. Ovitz breached his fiduciary duties by agreeing to that treatment. As such, derivative plaintiffs' claim relating to Mr. Ovitz's departure from Disney is barred.
