If you have corrections or questions, please Email Tony Varona at avarona@wcl.american.edu

9:55 – 10:35 a.m. On Progressive Law Teaching: SALT Principles, SALT Values

This session will provide an opportunity to discuss what it means to teach a progressive curriculum and educate from a social justice perspective. This session also will be an introduction to the Society of American Law Teachers (SALT) a community of activist law professors allied with LatCrit. Finally, the session will focus on networking advantages that can result from a connection to a progressive law teachers' organization, which focuses attention on issues related to the rule of law, inclusion, and academic freedom.

Presenters: Raquel Aldana, McGeorge-University of the Pacific; Margaret Barry, Catholic University

10:45 – 12:00 p.m. Building the Academy: Mock Job Talks Session I

We strongly encourage your attendance at the Mock Job Talks. This is a great way to help a progressive colleague. Pick up a box lunch and take it with you to the room of your choice.

Room A

Steven Macias, California Western, "Sexuality in the Public Schools: Overcoming the Double Standard"

Room B

Laura Cisneros, Texas Southern University, "The Use and Abuse of Youngstown Sheet's Central Myth: The 'Zone of Twilight' and the Creation of an Area of Nonjusticiability"

Room C

Saru Matambanadzo, University of California, Los Angeles, "Reimagining Legal Personhood."

Room D

Jelila Jefferson Bullock

11:00 a.m - 1:15 p.m. Box Lunches Available to Pick Up to Take to Mock Job Talks

12:00 – 1:15 p.m. Building the Academy: Mock Job Talks Session II

Room A

Bertrall Ross, Columbia University

Room B

César Cuauhtémoc García Hernández, The Law Offices of Raul Garcia, "Right to Counsel Violated: The Due Process Clause and the Department of Homeland Security's Transfer Policy for Immigration Detainees."

LatCrit/SALT Junior Faculty Development Workshop
Thursday, October 1 (cont'd)

Room C

Elizabeth MacDowell, Chapman University, “When Reading Between the Lines is Not Enough: Lessons from Media Coverage of a Domestic Violence Homicide-Suicide”

1:30 – 3:00 p.m. On Scholarship: What to Write, How to Finish

This session will begin with brief presentations by professors on how to identify a scholarly agenda, conduct research, and “close” a project.

Presenters: Sumi Cho, DePaul University; Melissa Murray, University of California, Berkeley; Asmara Tekle-Johnson, Texas Southern University; Leticia Saucedo, Duke University

3:15 – 5:30 p.m. On Pedagogy: Teaching, Authenticity, and Critical Reflection

This session will focus on teaching techniques, including the basic elements of critical pedagogy in clinical and textbook methods of teaching. The session will conclude with a discussion of concrete teaching methods and experiences and an open discussion and comment period.

Presenters: Jane Aiken, Georgetown University; Rachel Anderson, University of Nevada-Las Vegas; Kaaryn Gustafson, University of Connecticut; Trina Jones, University of California, Irvine

6:00 – 7:30 p.m. Dinner: Developing Networks and Community Building

This will be a working dinner. We encourage each table to discuss ways to develop professional relationships and networks in the legal academy. This is a great way to meet and break bread with new friends. We will also hear about the benefits of membership in SALT.

Presenters: Stephen Bender, University of Oregon; Hazel Weiser, SALT

7:45 – 9:00 p.m. Concurrent Breakout Sessions

In these sessions, the facilitators briefly offer their thoughts—approximately five minutes—and then facilitate a discussion and answer questions regarding the identified topics and issues.

Session A: Breaking Into Academia

This session will explore the issues facing those on the teaching job market, including the nuts and bolts of the AALS interview process, on-campus call-back interviews, selection of the best personal fit, and closing the deal. The session will include discussions about negotiating teaching packages, pre-tenure leaves, salaries, and research support. The facilitators for this session include past Appointments Committee Chairs and successful candidates from last year.

Facilitators: Tucker Culbertson, Syracuse University; Mary Fan, American University; Emily Houh, University of Cincinnati; Stephen Lee, University of California, Irvine; Catherine Smith, Denver University

Session B: Visits, Lateral Moves, and Negotiations

This session will explore the issues facing those who are considering a visit or a move from their current institutions. Discussion will revolve around getting offers to visit or permanently move, learning the “dirt” on institutions before deciding to visit or move, and negotiating for the best packages. The facilitators will include scholars who have visited, moved to other institutions, or both.

Facilitators: Mario Barnes, University of California, Irvine (Visit and Move); Kevin Maillard, Syracuse University (Visit); Adele Morrison, Wayne State University (Visit and Move); Peggie Smith, University of Iowa (Move)

Session C: One Foot Outside the Ivory Tower

This session will provide insights into how professors may become more involved in activities and activism outside of law schools. It also will explore ways to integrate these activities and experiences into faculty life as a scholar and teacher. Topics will range from work as a consultant or expert witness, to drafting amicus briefs and new constitutions, to old-fashioned activism.

Facilitators: Mark Sidel, University of Iowa (Advising on Legal Reform in the Developing World); Adrien Wing, University of Iowa (Constitution); Bryan Adamson, Seattle University (Community Education on Unfair Lending Practices); Colin Crawford (International Work)

Session D: Administration as the Next Move?

This session will explore questions and considerations for scholars who are considering a move to administration in some form. Discussion will revolve around work as a dean, associate dean, director of a center, or university administrator.

Facilitators: Bob Chang, Seattle University (Center Director); Marcella David, University of Iowa (University Administrator); Kevin Johnson, University of California, Davis (Dean); Tayyab Mahmud, Seattle University (Associate Dean and Center Director); John White, University of Nevada-Las Vegas (Dean)

LatCrit/SALT Junior Faculty Development Workshop
Thursday, October 1 (cont'd) and Friday, October 2

9:10 pm – 10:30 pm

FILM SCREENING: Made in LA

Facilitated by Steven Bender, University of Oregon School of Law

All LatCrit/SALT Junior Faculty Development Workshop participants and LatCrit XIV Conference participants arriving Thursday evening are invited to attend this screening of Made in LA, recipient of a 2008 Oscar nomination for Best Documentary and winner the 2008 award for Best Documentary from the National Association of Latino/a Independent Producers (NALIP). The film documents a three-year struggle by undocumented Latina garment workers that resulted in a landmark decision holding retailers accountable for the sale of goods produced under illegal labor conditions. A brief discussion among attendees will follow the film's screening.

10:30 pm -1:00 a.m. Hospitality Reception/Community Building

Friday, October 2, 2009

8:30 a.m. Tea and Coffee Service; Continental Breakfast Buffet

8:45-10:15 On Professionalism & Balance: Constructing Academic and Personal Success

After concluding reintroductions and reviewing LatCrit fundamentals, we will turn to the basics of professionalism in the context of the North American legal academy, including key questions on institutional politics, “collegiality” and similar topics that are elemental to academic success. We will also discuss and incorporate reflections upon ways and means of balancing the various demands on our time and energy.

Panel: Ruben Garcia, California Western; Christian Sundquist, Albany Law School; Rose Cuison Villazor, Hofstra University

Friday, October 2 (cont'd)

10:30 – 11:30 a.m.

Mock “Job Talk” for Law Teaching Aspirants

A “job talk” is a presentation and defense of a work-in-progress by a law faculty candidate during a typical campus hiring visit. This session is intended for those LatCrit XIV attendees who are interested in but not yet embarked upon a legal academic career, and could benefit from a live demonstration of a job talk by a master teacher and scholar.

Presenter: FRANK VALDES, University of Miami School of Law
To be recorded for webcast.

WORKS-IN-PROGRESS COLLOQUIA and PANELS

The works-in-progress sessions – both individual colloquia and multi-paper panels – provide an opportunity to participate in the development of research and scholarship that contributes both to the theoretical and praxis orientations of LatCrit. We are fortunate this year to feature an extensive and rich array of papers and book chapters in this segment of our conference. There are three consecutive 70-minute rounds, each containing 4 concurrent work-in-progress colloquia featuring two sets of authors and commentators presenting their respective papers or book chapters. Each round also contains one more traditional panel of multiple interrelated works-in-progress. This year we have organized the various works in progress into substantive streams, which identify commonalities among various papers and engage in a broader discourse. The LatCrit Works-in-Progress sessions are among the most important and valuable events at our annual conference, so we urge all conference attendees to engage in a constructive and nurturing way in as many of these sessions as possible.

Following are the papers and book chapters scheduled to be presented during the Works-in-Progress Colloquia. Commentators/readers, substantive streams, and rounds assignments will be announced in advance of the Conference.
