First Annual Ricketson Film Festival
To Emphasize New Perspectives on Ethics

Since Shakespeare created Portia, lawyers have attracted the attention of the arts. That there is something valuable to be learned from this perspective is the inspiration for the First Annual Frank H. Ricketson, Jr., Film Festival, to take place at the College of Law on Saturday, October 29.

The Festival honors the late Westminster Law School alumnus (JD ’19), theatre magnate, Denver civic leader, and lifelong champion of cinema arts. This year’s series focuses on the issues of professional responsibility raised in three great trial films: Breaker Morant, Paths of Glory, and Inherit the Wind.

The program will last from 3:00 to 10:00 p.m., with time out for a champagne buffet supper. Each movie will be screened and then followed by a panel discussion of the issues raised. The event is accredited for two units of cle ethics credit.

Assistant Dean Mark S. Caldwell, JD ’76 director of the sponsoring Institute for Advanced Legal Studies, says, “The law school is going outside the generic cle program format to address issues on a deeper intellectual and philosophical level. We want to recognize that law is more than a trade—it is a profession that requires deeper consideration. This is an opportunity for that kind of reflection.

Mandatory cle in Colorado, he adds, “has tended to emphasize the pragmatic aspects of law, such as wills, divorces, and corporations, to the detriment of broader perspectives.”

Breaker Morant is an Australian movie based on the true story of three soldiers whose actions during the Boer War are used as fodder for a court martial trumped up to satisfy the political plans of the British Empire. Its court martial scenes illuminate the basic ingredients of fair and impartial adjudication.

Paths of Glory is a 1957 United Artists release about the French Army set amid the trench warfare of 1916. Its theme is similar to that of Breaker Morant—it is another trumped-up court martial, but this time prompted by motives of personal advancement. In it, a brilliant lawyer goes to the limits of the system for the accused, but is unwilling to transcend the system itself.

Inherit the Wind is the classic dramatization of the 1925 Scopes “Monkey Trial” in which a Tennessee school teacher was accused of violating state law by teaching the theory of evolution. Courtroom tactics are carried out by Spencer Tracy as the Clarence Darrow figure and Fredric March as the William Jennings Bryan figure. It raises professional responsibility issues over the defense attorney’s motion to withdraw from the case, and the prosecutor’s questionable tactics in order to win a case in which he is emotionally involved.

Panelists who will discuss Breaker Morant and Paths of Glory include DU law Professors Robert B. Yegge (JD ’59) and James L. Winokur, and attorneys Cassandra G. Sasso and Carl E.K. Johnson (JD ’69). Panelists for Inherit the Wind will be Dean Edward A. Dauer, Justice Howard Kirshbaum of the Colorado Supreme Court, Professor Stephen L. Pepper, and attorneys Frances A. Koncilja and Alfred McDonnell.

They Ran for the Pub...

Students, alumni, and faculty joined in a 5-K Run held September 17 to support Mapelli’s Pub. The on-campus facility, to be located in Foote Hall, will commemorate the days when the law school was located above Mapelli’s Meat Market in downtown Denver.

1988-89 a Rich Year In Faculty Recruits

Three new full-time faculty members and three visiting professors, each distinguished in his own field, will join the DU law faculty this year. Professor Arthur Best, Assistant Professor J. Robert Brown, Jr., and Professor Edward H. Ziegler, Jr., will be permanent members of the faculty. Visiting professors during the coming year are B. Glenn George, Laurence C. Mann, and Daniel J. Morrissey.

Says Professor George W. Pring, chair of the faculty committee that directed the search for their new colleagues, "We had an extraordinarily rich year."

Other new faculty appointments this fall are Barbara Greenspahn, as Director of Law Libraries and Associate Professor of Law Library Science (page 4) and Cynthia A. Savage as Clinical Visiting Professor associated with the Student Law Office mediation-arbitration program (page 3).

Best, an authority on consumer affairs, communications media and torts, comes from New York Law School where he also directed the school's Communications Media Center. Professor Best served as a Visiting Professor at DU in 1986-87. A graduate of the University of Pennsylvania Law School, he holds an undergraduate degree from Columbia College.

Brown, whose fields are corporations, securities and business planning, has taught at the Dickinson School of Law and at Franklin & Marshall College. From 1984-86 he was a senior staff attorney with the Securities and Exchange Commission. A graduate of the College of William and Mary and the University of Maryland School of Law, Brown holds an M.A. in government from Georgetown University. He expects to complete his Ph.D. at Georgetown in 1989.

Ziegler, a visiting professor at DU in 1987-88, now joins the permanent faculty. An expert in land use planning and zoning, and property, he was on the law faculty at the University of Dayton the past eight years and has also taught at Northern Kentucky University. Ziegler holds a B.A. from the University of Notre Dame, a J.D. from the University of Kentucky, and an LL.M. from George Washington University.

George and Morrissey are both nationally recognized scholars; George in labor law and Morrissey in corporations and securities. George has taught most recently at the College of William & Mary, Marshall-Wythe School of Law, and Morrissey is Associate Professor at the University of Tulsa School of Law. Laurence C. Mann, a member of the faculty at Wayne State Law School, has a distinguished reputation in teaching in his areas of specialty: civil procedure, product liability and torts.

Alumni Lunch Series

Howard J. Glicksman will kick off a series of three alumni lunches sponsored by the Law Alumni Association on Wednesday, November 9, at the Radisson Hotel, with the subject "Dissecting the Standard NFL Player Contract." These will be held at various locations throughout metro Denver, inviting busy practitioners to immerse themselves briefly in specialized fields outside their daily realms.

Glicksman, who specializes in sports law in addition to corporate and tax work, has represented sports figures like Mike Hardin, Ed "Too-Tall" Jones, Mike Borrillo and Bob Swenson. He is an alumnus of NYU Law School, where he earned the J.D. and LL.M. degrees.

The second speaker of the series will be Ian B. Bird, JD '76, Associate General Counsel of Waste Management International of Oak Brook, Illinois. The luncheon is scheduled for February 22 at the Cherry Creek Inn. His topic is "Environmental Imperialism: Exporting Waste to Third World Countries." Bird was a student in the International Legal Studies program.

On April 5 Hon. Patricio Serna, JD '70, will speak on "The Contested Celebrity Will: Lessons from the Georgia O'Keeffe Case." Judge Serna, a New Mexico District Judge, presided over the settlement of the multimillion dollar estate of the famed New Mexico artist who died in 1986.

Another Giant Step Forward for Dream of Residential Campus

When Curtis Hall, a former women's dormitory at the south end of the law school campus, opened its newly-converted apartments to students in September, it was another landmark in the evolution of the College of Law. A school that was most recently a pair of buildings locked in among the parking lots and government buildings of the Denver Civic Center has become a school on a residential campus.

The opening of a day care center for children of students, faculty, and staff scheduled for mid-October is another major step in realizing the plan formulated when the University of Denver took over the former Colorado Women's College, built the Lowell Thomas Law Center, and the College of Law moved to its current home in the spring of 1984.

"The whole College of Law community is delighted that the idea of a residential campus and a true law center is coming into being," says Professor Christopher H. Munch. Professor Munch was first chairman of the Campus Development Committee that caused the dormitory conversion and day care center to materialize, after years of creative effort and overcoming obstacles.

Says Bob McGee, Campus Coordinator, who has overseen completion of the two new facilities, "Had it not been for Chris Munch, we might not have a day care center yet. He's tenacious."

Curtis Hall contains 39 apartment units, mostly two-room, and all had been filled at the beginning of the year. Two of these are handicapped units with wheelchair access. Another 30 students live in Dunton Hall, a dormitory which has housed law students since the move to the new campus.
Alumni Stalwarts
To Co-Chair
Annual Fund Drive

Glen E. Keller, Jr., JD '64 and James C. Owen, Jr., JD, LLB '56, have accepted appointments as co-chairmen of this year's Law Alumni Fund. The co-chairmen have announced that their goal will be $350,000, an increase over last year's total of $326,254 (page 12).

Keller and Owen each bring to this campaign a distinguished record of service to the College of Law and the community.

Keller, a partner at Davis, Graham & Stubbs in Denver, has been a member of the Law Alumni Council since 1973, serving as its chairman in 1978-79. He also holds an appointment as adjunct professor at the College of Law. In addition to private practice, Keller has served as assistant Colorado attorney general and as a judge with the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Denver.

He is president of the Jefferson County Board of Education and also president/director of the Westernaires, a group of student equestrians who perform in Colorado and adjacent states.

Owen, currently vice-chairman of the DU Law Alumni Council, is a partner in Holme, Roberts & Owen. He is a director of United Bank of Denver National Association and of its parent, United Banks of Colorado, Inc. He is a past chairman of the Lawyers' Committee, Association of Bank Holding Companies, and of the Banking Committee of the Corporation, Banking and Business Law Section of the Colorado Bar Association. He is a former member of the Colorado Governor's Council of Advisors on Consumer Credit and has been, since 1975, a faculty member of the Colorado Graduate School of Banking.

Retirees

Two longtime staff members at the College of Law have retired in recent months, and have each been named Amicus in honor of their service to the University.

They are Marge Grigsby, who directed the school's duplicating services for over 20 years, and Velvin Guiet, who had been the only manager of the law bookstore and served at the law school since 1974.

Greetings for Marge and Vel from alumni friends may be sent to their attention at the Dean's Office, College of Law, 7039 East 18th Avenue, Denver, CO 80220, and they will be forwarded to them.

SLO Grants Will Address Mediation, Elderly Needs

Two grants, one newly awarded by the U.S. Department of Education Clinical Legal Experience program, and one renewed by the Legal Services Corporation, will support the work of the DU Student Law Office this year. Professor Jeffrey H. Hartje is director of the Lawyering Skills Program which includes the Student Law Office.

Under the Department of Education grant, students will work in a mediation-arbitration center to facilitate settlements of primarily landlord-tenant conflicts. It will serve the dual purpose of training students in alternative dispute resolution and addressing a social need the proponents describe as "of near crisis proportion" in Denver where one-fourth of all civil cases filed in Denver County Court alone are landlord-tenant related.

A partnership with the Denver Landlord/Tenant Mediation Task Force will provide technical assistance, community contacts, referral services and organize a community advisory board for the program. It will also provide an assurance that the educational and service components of the center will continue after the initial grant year.

The grant has permitted the appointment of a faculty lawyer/mediator to train students. Cynthia A. Savage, who was formerly Research Associate Professor in the Clinical Law Program, University of New Mexico School of Law, will join the College of Law faculty as Clinical Visiting Professor with this responsibility.

The Student Law Office's Elderlaw project, providing representation of the elderly and handicapped, will be funded for a second year with a grant of $50,000 from the Legal Services Corporation. Margaret Walker, Adjunct Professor of Clinical Law and director of the project, says that the program will be expanded this year to assist the homeless population in Denver and victims of domestic violence in Adams County.

Barbara Greenspahn: Information Brokerage Is Her Business

Today's librarians are primarily information brokers, and books are no longer the only essential ingredients of libraries, in Barbara Greenspahn's account. The new director of DU's Westminster Law Library represents a computer-age kind of librarian whose purview extends far beyond the printed page. "Libraries used to be book-oriented, but now they are more people- and process-oriented," she says.

As an information broker, Prof. Greenspahn's aim is to make the library and its staff facilitators between the user and the information. "Our constituents are the students, the faculty, and the local legal community (of whom DU alumni are the most significant segment), and we want to be responsive to all of their needs. The library should be the center of this particular universe," she says.

Prof. Greenspahn brings to the directorship of DU's law library her experience in the libraries of Harvard Law School, Boston University Law School, Chase Law School, and the University of California at Los Angeles. She has broad experience as a library services consultant, and has also served as manager of information resources at the Denver firm of Davis, Graham & Stubbs. She earned her M.S. at Simmons College School of Library Science and is a J.D. graduate cum laude of Boston University School of Law. She assumed her new post at DU in June, 1988.

"Information-brokerage is increasingly labor intensive," Prof. Greenspahn explains, adding that the library staff's response will be to "work smarter" by helping to make library users as independent as possible.

Among the changes library users will notice this fall are new maps and identifying signs and graphics in the library, helping users deal with the physical layout of the library. Improved teaching tools will encourage users to learn to do research on sophisticated data bases like WESTLAW and LEXIS.

Informational materials are not what they used to be, either. "We have an enormous microform collection of materials that are not available in hard copy or that are too big to house, such as United Nation documents and Congressional publications. Our maps direct users to both hard copy and microform materials."

Prof. Greenspahn's second basic priority, she says, is continued enrichment of the collection. "We have a strong basic collection which needs to be enriched in some areas, especially our foreign and international materials."

"What makes a good library, though, is awareness of where the law and the legal community will be in five, ten, or fifteen years, and to be ready for those research needs. We have to be able to look into a crystal ball. Some of the areas that are bound to become more important are health care, government regulation, and environmental issues."

"We also have to reflect the increasing overlap between law in the narrowest sense and the other social sciences. Legal questions are increasingly questions of policy, economics, and politics. We are required to be able to access a broader range of material than before. As an example, a few years ago this library requested about 25 interlibrary loans per year," she adds. "Last year we did about 1,000."

There are various ways of developing a collection, says Prof. Greenspahn. The first is purchase of materials, and she adds that the library's budget for this purpose is significantly improved. Another is gifts from existing collections. In this category are the 300 boxes of social science materials from the Colorado Women's College Library that are now being incorporated into the Westminster Library. A third method is to engage in duplicate and exchange programs with other libraries, and the Westminster Library has begun programs with other universities.

Prof. Greenspahn adds, "We encourage alumni to use the library. That is evident in our policy of making free library cards available to alumni within 10 years of graduation and charging a moderate fee for alumni thereafter."
The College of Law extends its sincere appreciation to the many alumni, friends, parents, law firms, corporations and foundations who supported the school during the 1987-88 fiscal year. Contributions from all sources amounted to $5,676,294.00 during the year.

The Honor Roll acknowledges all contributions to the College of Law, including: Estate of Frank H. Ricketson, Jr., ’19; Law Alumni Fund (see page 18); Inns of Court Capital Campaign; The National Center for Preventive Law; Named Scholarship Funds (see listing on page 17); Memorial Gifts; Public Interest Clerkship Program; Mapelli Student Union Fund; Dean’s Fund for Faculty Programs; Natural Resources Program; Graduate Tax Program; International Legal Studies Program; Masters in Judicial Administration Program; Writing Awards; Lectureships; Moot Court Competitions; the Westminster Law Library; and other gifts made through bequests.

John E. Gorsuch Endowed Library Fund Student Tutorial Program, funds provided by Clarence L. Bartholic, '25 Weissman Public Interest Clerkship

Legend: Law Alumni donors are listed by the year in which they received their JD or LLB degree, even though they may hold other degrees from the University. Alumni who earned only the LLM or MSJA degree at the College of Law are listed by the year in which those degrees were received.
Alumni Fund

For the third consecutive year the College of Law Alumni Fund has set a new record. Total gifts and pledges for 1987-88 were $326,254, according to Glen E. Keller, Jr., '64, Fund Chairman.

“We are proud that increases were realized in total alumni giving, the number of donors and the percent of participation,” Keller said. “We owe everyone who helped in this effort our thanks and sincere appreciation.”

The continued record-breaking pace of the Law Alumni Fund saw an increase of 300 new donor to the alumni giving clubs at the College of Law. The total number of contributors last year was 1,704 ($1,000-$10,000+) increased from 149 (27%)

Meet Two New Alumni...

Jonathan Cross and Matt Hogan, both June 1988 law graduates, personify the law school experience. These profiles are reprinted from the 1988-89 College of Law Bulletin.

JONATHAN WHITMAN CROSS
Age: 27
J.D. University of Denver, June, 1988
B.A. University of Virginia, 1984

Mr. Cross entered law school with a keen interest in both natural resources and transportation, and the belief that a law degree is a good way to apply these interests so as to have an impact for the better. He came to DU for its special programs in each of these areas, and gradually gravitated toward transportation law.

He graduated with his career goal met, moving into a position as an Honors Attorney—one of eight selected annually—for the U.S. Department of Transportation in Washington, D.C. Mr. Cross recalls, “I ended my first year right in the middle of the class, and discouraged.” He was encouraged to press on by members of the faculty whom he got to know personally. He concludes, “Grades aren’t as important as you might think; it’s what you get out of a course that matters.”

He adds, “One of the great things about DU was having people from all walks of life in my classes—there might be former musicians or 40-year-old geologists—it was very stimulating.” Mr. Cross was associate editor of the Transportation Law Journal and also clerked for an administrative law judge, the Hon. Patrick G. Geraghty of the National Transportation Safety Board.

MATT HOGAN
Age: 26
J.D./M.B.A., University of Denver, 1988
B.A. Georgetown University cum laude, 1984

Mr. Hogan chose the University of Denver for his law and business studies both for the dual degree opportunity, and because of his deep roots in Denver, his lifelong home. He expects the business degree to help him understand the needs of his clients, and the law degree to satisfy his “sense of advocacy.”

Wishing to improve his persuasive and public speaking skills, he entered moot court competition, becoming the 1986 Regional Champion and National Finalist in the American Trial Lawyers Association competition. He was the 1987 Regional Champion and National Finalist in the ABA competition and was further awarded the Bureau of National Affairs Student Law Advocacy Award.

In his final summer as a student he was a summer associate in the Wall Street firm of Hawkins, Delafield & Woods. Though he regards it as a fine experience and was offered a permanent position, Mr. Hogan chose to stay in Denver with the 27-attorney law firm of Moye, Giles, O’Keefe, Vermeire & Gorrell. He chose the firm for its commercial practice, the caliber of its associates, and an attitude toward law that considers the quality of life outside the workplace.

Mr. Hogan adds that he was refreshed and sustained during his arduous four years of study by coaching a soccer team of 17 ten-year old girls. “They kept me from taking myself too seriously,” he says.

Commencement 1988

Three of the speakers at law commencement exercises held in the Whatley Chapel amphitheater on June 4, 1988, represented the law school family. Professor Emeritus John A. Carver, Jr., gave the faculty address, and graduating students David Tucker (left) and Barry Schwartz represented the Day and Evening Divisions respectively. Justice Mary Mularkey of the Colorado Supreme Court gave the principal address.
1925 The Boettcher Foundation of Denver has established a Visiting Distinguished Professorship at the University of Denver in memory of Walter K. Koch, JD, who died last November. Koch, a past president of the former Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Company, a past vice chairman and trustee of the Boettcher Foundation, was a long-time member and president of DU's board of trustees. The Foundation set aside $500,000 to support the professorship.

1950 Burton A. Smead, Jr., JD, retired as treasurer and "official poet laureate" of the Colorado Bar Association in May 1988, after many years of service in both posts.

1957 John E. Bush, LLB, has been appointed to a four-year term on the State Commission on Judicial Performance. He is vice president, general counsel and secretary of Central Bankcorp, Inc., and Central Bank of Denver.

Hon. Roger Cisneros, JD, retired Denver district court judge, has been named by Mayor Federico Pena to serve on the Denver Civil Service Commission. He succeeds Art Lucero, JD '70, who resigned from the Commission.

Kaiser Michael, Jr., JD, is chairman of the board of trustees at the University of New Mexico Hospital/Bernalillo County Medical Center, Albuquerque. He has served in the post the last three years.

1958 Vernon W. Newbold, JD, a retired United Air Lines captain, lives in Honolulu, Hawaii. He and his wife of 45 years are co-owners of two shops, "The Chocolate Lady of Honolulu," and he is also a registered parliamentarian.

1959 Denver attorney Theodore Epstein, JD, recently made a 300-mile run across Colorado from Wyoming to New Mexico to enhance public understanding of asthma. Donations raised during the run were contributed to Denver's Jewish Hospital.

1962 E Burton Smith, Jr., JD, formerly chief counsel with the Colorado State Compensation Insurance Authority, has joined Glassman, Jaynes & McBride, Denver, as of counsel.

1965 Larry F. Hobbs, JD, and Hornbein, MacDonald & Fattor, have merged to form Hornbein, MacDonald, Fattor & Hobbs, Denver.

1969 Russ W. Bond, JD, is a partner in the recently formed Denver firm of Heppenstaull, Bond & Morris.

Randall D. Jorgensen, JD, Pueblo, Colorado, received the 1988 Jonathan Olom Award during the fourth annual Olom Award Program May 6, 1988. The Colorado Criminal Defense Bar honors an attorney who has made personal sacrifices without regard to personal gain in the defense of the accused, in the tradition of the late Jonathan Olom, JD '75.

John J. Lowrey, JD, Chicago, was recently elected a diplomate of the American Board of Professional Liability Attorneys.

Lawrence J. Schoenwald, JD, and Forrest W. Lewis have formed Schoenwald & Lewis, Denver.

1970 J. Kent Miller, JD, is a partner in the firm of Miller & McCarren, recently formed in Denver.

1972 Howard Kenison, JD, has joined Gorsuch, King, Campbell, Walker & Grover, Denver. He was formerly Colorado deputy attorney general and chief of the superfund litigation section of the attorney general's office.

1973 Arthur B. Walsh, JD, is now associated with Grant, McHendrie, Haines & Crouse, Denver.

1974 James M. Mulligan, JD, Denver, chairs the Governor's Unified Housing Task Force which will inventory existing housing in Colorado, develop recommendations for making affordable housing available to all state residents and address the problem of foreclosures and their prevention. He represents the Colorado Association of Commerce and Industry's housing team on the 18-member panel.

W. David Murphy, JD, has joined Hughes, Pelz, Chikeman & Marcucci, Denver, as of counsel.

Beverly J. Quail, JD, Denver, has just had a three-volume book entitled Colorado Real Estate Forms—Practice published by Aspen Publishers, Inc.

Don R. Teasley, JD, Denver, has been named Clark/Bardes, Inc., in Dallas, Texas, as senior vice president and general counsel.

1975 Sara Hemphill Hauver, JD, is president of Trading Company of Alaska, with offices in Seattle, Washington.

Earl G. Rhodes, JD, has been named a shareholder at Younger & Hockensmith, Grand Junction, Colorado.

Michael L. Whitcomb, JD, has been named general solicitor-California, of Union Pacific Railroad, with headquarters in Los Angeles. He is responsible for advising the railroad on legal questions which arise in California and Nevada and supervising litigation work in the two states. He joined the UP law department in 1978.

1976 Malcolm M. Murray, JD, has become a partner at Gorsuch, King, Campbell, Walker & Grover, Denver.

Stephen G. Weiman, JD, has been named assistant vice president, transportation and exchange, at MidCon Services, Houston, Texas. He has been associated with MidCon since 1980.

Kenneth D. Willis, JD, has joined the firm of Phelps, Singer & Dunn, Denver.

1977 Michael C. Cook, JD, has been named a member of the firm at Faegre & Benson, Denver.

John P. Ford, JD, Washington, D.C., has recently been named director of government relations with The Kellogg Company, in Washington.

1978 H. Paul Himes, Jr., JD, is associated with the newly-formed Denver firm of Aisenberg and Kaplan.

Keith D. Johnson, JD, has joined the law firm of Leonard M. Chesler, Denver. He is the former chief deputy district attorney in Colorado's second judicial district.

Kristine B. Kendrick, JD, has been named senior title attorney with Lawyers Title Insurance Corporation's national division office in Atlanta, Georgia. She joined Lawyers Title in 1987 after serving in positions with a Baton Rouge, Louisiana, company. She previously was in private practice in Colorado Springs and Denver.

1979 Arnold P. Guttenberg, JD, has been named of counsel at Hughes, Pelz, Chikeman & Marion, Denver.

John L. Ruppert, JD, has been named a member of the Denver firm of Ballard, Spahr, Andrews & Ingersoll.

Wendy Sneej, JD, is an attorney at the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, Washington, D.C.

1980 Brad W. Breslau, JD, is a partner at Deisch, Moore & Breslau, Denver, formerly Deisch & Marion.

Lisa A. Lowe Denker, JD, serves with the Chicago law firm of Portes, Sharp, Herbst & Kravets. She is married to Rabbi Steven L. Denker and the couple has one son, David.

Carol H. Green, JD, has left The Denver Post to join Newsday in New York City where she serves as circulation manager, sales and administration.

Raymond L. Sutton, Jr., LLM, has joined Baker & Hostetler as a partner in the Denver office. He was previously Managing Partner with Cogswell & Wehrle of Denver.

Barry J. Weinert, JD, has been named a director at Sterling & Miller, Denver.

1982 Jill Asher, JD, has been named in-house counsel with Lancer Claims Services, Inc., Anaheim, California.
In Memoriam

Honors

Several College of Law graduates have been honored by their peers in recent months.

The Denver Bar Association in May presented its annual Award of Merit to O. Otto Moore, LLB '22, of Denver for outstanding service to the legal profession. A Colorado Supreme Court Justice for 20 years, Moore worked in the Denver District Attorney’s office for many years. He authored the Old Age Pension Law in 1936 and in the late 60’s wrote the new Colorado Criminal Code.

The DBA presented then-Denver District Court Judge Harold D. Reed its 1988 Judicial Excellence Award, citing his legal ability and courteous courtroom demeanor.

Among those receiving the Bar’s Volunteer Lawyers of the Year citations was Patrick J. Burke, JD '77, Denver. He was part of the legal team that defended those accused of assassinating Denver talk show host Alan Berg.

The Sam Cary Bar Association honored Denver attorneys and DU graduates Paul A. Baca, JD '72, and John E. Mosby, JD '73, for commitment to upholding “the civil rights of the individual, and his successful defense, in both U.S. and Colorado courts, of clients.”
Law Alumni Council

A move to provide greater representation on the DU Law Alumni Council for the growing number of younger graduates was approved at the Council's July 16 meeting. The Council also re-elected last year's officers to serve another year.

Membership in Group III representatives (alumni who graduated 10 years ago or less) was increased from six to nine. Elected to these posts were George W. (Skip) Gray, JD '85, Larry Sigman, JD '83, and Debra K. Wilcox, JD '86, all of Denver.

William T. Diss, JD '59, was re-elected chairman; James C. Owen, Jr., LLB '56, vice-chairman; and Connie B. Hyde, JD '81, secretary. All are from Denver.

Ted Allegra, JD '81, of Grand Junction, and Christina N. Beaton, JD '82, of Denver, were named to fill group III vacancies. They replace Craig D. Joyce, JD '80, Denver, and Margaret N. Dillon, JD '78, Boulder, whose terms expired.

In Group I, Clarence L. Bartholic, LLB '25, Denver was named to serve a second three-year term. Daniel S. Hoffman, LLB '58, and Richard E. Mauro, JD '70, both of Denver were also named to second three-year terms.

Three alumni joined the Council for the first time to fill vacancies in Group II. Robert S. Appel, LLB '52, and Mary Ellen Amaral, JD '73, both of Denver will serve three-year terms, replacing Mr. Diss, and Mary H. Ewing, JD '75, Denver, whose terms expired. Also new to the Council is Alvin J. Meiklejohn, JD '51, Arvada, who fills the unexpired term of Albert Brenman, JD, '51, Denver, former Council chairman who becomes an honorary member of the Council.

Alumni Bar Officers

A number of College of Law graduates are serving posts with various Colorado and Denver metropolitan area bar associations. They include:

Adams County Bar Association—Hon. John J. Vigil, JD '78, president; William H. Ebbert, JD '81, secretary.

Arapahoe County Bar Association—Robert G. Wilson, Jr., JD '77, treasurer; Ethan D. Feldman, JD '74, secretary; J. Mark Hannen, JD '71, and Judge James F. Macrum, JD '67, representatives to the Colorado Bar Association Board of Governors.

Colorado Hispanic Bar—Celeste M.
