Judge Finesilver Lectures Feature Ethics, Advocacy

Two January lectures will conclude the second annual Martin P. Miller Distinguished Professorship Lecture Series at the College of Law. The series is being presented by the Hon. Sherman G. Finesilver, JD’52, chief judge of the U.S. District Court, Colorado.

Judge Finesilver’s series topic is “New Dimensions of Ethics and Advocacy in the 90’s.” He spoke on Nov. 11 and 25 and will conclude with lectures on Jan. 11 and 21. The presentations, open to the public without charge, are made in the Davis Auditorium of the Lowell Thomas Law Building at the College of Law.

The Jan. 14 topic will be “Separating Science from Science Fiction: When Experts do Battle in Court.” The final lecture on Jan. 21 will be on “Is Our Legal System in Need of Immediate Change?”

Each of the lectures has been approved for one general credit and one ethics credit under Colorado rules regulations.

The Miller Professorship was established at DU by Martin P. Miller, well-known Denver-area attorney and a 1951 DU law graduate. The professorship and lecture series represent Miller’s commitment to reinforcing the awareness of professional responsibility among students.

Planning Underway For DU Law Centennial

Planning is underway for the College of Law’s Centennial observance scheduled during the school’s 1992-93 academic year. The general thrust of the Centennial will be public activities featuring the school’s past, present, and future role as a national leader in legal education and as a citizen of the Rocky Mountain area.

The school opened Oct. 3, 1892, with an enrollment of 40 students. Several local leaders of the Denver legal community were instrumental in the school’s founding. Colorado Supreme Court Justice Albert Eugene Pattison was the first dean of the College.

Dean Dennis O. Lynch has appointed Professor and Dean Emeritus Robert B. Yegge, JD’59, as coordinator of Centennial activities. Chairpersons will be named to direct special activities and related development programs.

A major project of the 100th birthday celebration will be the production of a printed history of the law school. Law Professor Arthur Best will conduct interviews with alumni in the coming months. These oral histories will be interspersed with an historical narrative. Phil Gauthier, retiring director of alumni relations, will assist with the historical project.

Interested alumni are invited to be a part of the oral histories. Those wishing to share remembrances of their law school experiences, as well as suggest “colorful school personalities” of their era, are asked to contact Prof. Best at (303) 871-6253, or write to him at the College of Law, 1900 Olive Street, Denver, Colo. 80220.

DU Law Alumni Receive Bar Assn. Awards

College of Law graduates were chosen as recipients of coveted annual awards presented by the Colorado and Denver Bar Associations at recent annual meetings of the two organizations.

Daniel S. Hoffman, LLB’58, was presented the Denver bar’s highest honor, the Award of Merit, at the annual DBA luncheon June 19 in Denver.

Richard W. Laugesen, JD’62, of Denver, received the Colorado Bar Association’s Award of Merit, also that group’s highest honor, on Sept. 27 during the CBA convention in Colorado Springs.

The CBA also presented its 1991 Outstanding Young Lawyer Award to Zachary G. Wilson, JD’82, of Ft. Collins.

Hoffman served as dean and professor of law at the College of Law from 1978-84 and now has the status of dean emeritus and professor emeritus. A senior partner at Holme Roberts & Owen in Denver, he chairs the firm’s litigation department. He has been president of the Colorado Bar Association, president of the...
Julie Nice, Robert Smith Named to Full-time Law Faculty Posts

The College of Law has made two new appointments to the full-time faculty, and four persons are spending part of the 1991-92 academic year at the school as visiting professors.

Joining the full-time teaching staff in September were Julie A. Nice and Robert B. Smith.

Professor Nice is a graduate of Northwestern University where she received her bachelor's degree in 1982 and her law degree in 1986. From 1989 until moving to Denver she served as a Fellow at the Northwestern Legal Clinic where she litigated poverty law cases and taught clinical practice, clinical trial advocacy, pre-trial litigation, and poverty law.

For three years following her law graduation she served as an attorney with the Legal Assistance Foundation of Chicago. At the Foundation she litigated large poverty law cases primarily in housing, family law, public benefits, and employment issues. Professor Nice teaches civil procedure and lawyering process at DU and is working on materials for a law and poverty course.

Professor Smith joined the Graduate Tax Program faculty this fall after spending the 1990-91 academic year as a visiting assistant professor of law at the University of Florida, where he earned the LLM in Taxation in 1987. He earned a bachelor's degree in 1987 from Western Kentucky University and the JD degree from Duke University in 1979.

From 1979-86 and 1987-90 Professor Smith was associated with the law firm of Sutherland, Asbill & Brennan, in Atlanta, Ga., where a high percentage of his practice was devoted to estate planning. He has written articles and spoken at professional meetings on a variety of topics related to his areas of expertise. At DU he is teaching trusts and estates, basic tax, and estate and gift taxation.

Following his graduation from Duke University School of Law in 1987, Professor Freyermuth served as a law clerk to Judge John D. Butzner, Jr., in the U.S. Court of Appeals, Fourth Circuit. He then joined the Raleigh, N.C., law firm of Womble Caryl, Sandridge and Rice where he was employed before coming to DU. He is teaching property and secured transactions.

Professor Thoms served as a visitor at DU last year (also in 1981-82) and is on leave from the University of North Dakota School of Law where he has served on the faculty since 1973. He has also served visitorships at several other law schools. Professor Thoms has written several books and articles relating to transportation issues, including one with DU Law Professor Paul Stephen Dempsey. Professor Thoms holds a bachelor's degree from Colgate, master's degrees, and the JSD from Tulane and the law degree from Yale. While at DU he is teaching administrative law, aviation law, property and comparative law.

Professor Weistart will teach sales and payment at DU. He is nationally known for his writings and commentaries on all aspects of intercollegiate and professional athletics. He has also written and published on commercial law matters. Professor Weistart is visiting from Duke University School of Law, where he has taught since 1969 and earned his law degree in 1968. He has also served as a visitor at other law schools. He earned a bachelor's degree from Illinois Wesleyan University in 1965. Wesleyan presented him an honorary degree in 1981.

Four Visitors Serving on 1991-92 Law Faculty

Visitors at DU law this year include Melinda Kassen, R. Wilson Freyermuth, Jr., William E. Thoms, and John C. Weistart.

Professor Kassen has been a senior attorney with the Environmental Defense Fund in Boulder since 1986. Previous to that she served as an assistant attorney general in Colorado and as a deputy city attorney in Los Angeles, Calif. She earned a bachelor's degree from Dartmouth in 1978 and a law degree from Stanford in 1981. She teaches environmental law, administrative law, and law of toxic and hazardous waste at DU.

The Law Alumni Newsletter is published by the University of Denver College of Law for its alumni and friends. Your comments and suggestions are welcome, especially news about alumni and their careers.

19-Year Association With DU

Gauthier to Retire From Alumni Post

After 19 years of hard work and dedication to the College of Law and the University, Phil Gauthier, director of alumni relations, will retire from the full-time staff effective Jan. 1, 1992.

During his tenure, which began in 1973, Gauthier has directed the school’s various alumni activities, as well as a number of public relations and publications functions.

According to Dean Dennis O. Lynch, “Phil has been invaluable to me during by first 18 months as Dean. He keeps track of the accomplishments of our alumni; he is always ready to assist with events; and he is the cornerstone of our alumni network.”

Gauthier has served under six deans, including two acting deans, beginning with Dean Emeritus Robert B. Yegge. “He is more than a legend to our alumni. The contact that most of them have had with the school is with Phil. He has certainly made some great friends for the school in his constant contact with our graduates,” Yegge said.

“The people have made my years at DU especially enjoyable; the alumni, staff, students, faculty, and administrators,” Gauthier said.

The alumni body has grown from approximately 3,500 in 1973 to its present total of over 7,500 living graduates. “It has been a privilege to know, work with, and establish friendships with a large number of the alumni, including many who graduated before I joined DU,” Gauthier added.

As the alumni body flourished so has the school’s alumni programs. Gauthier’s efforts were concentrated on the Law Alumni Council and regular alumni meetings. “Working with those who have served on the Law Alumni Council over the years has been especially enjoyable,” he said.

The Alumni Mentor Program, now in its 13th year, has been another of Gauthier’s favorite efforts. He also cited the establishment of a regular alumni newsletter as greatly assisting the school’s communications with its alumni constituents. Plans are currently underway to initiate a national alumni/program which will establish a network of alumni available to counsel graduating students regarding employment opportunities in various geographic areas.

Dean Lynch has asked Gauthier to continue to assist with special projects at the law school until a successor is named. One area of his involvements will be with the school’s Centennial, to be observed in the 1992-93 academic year.

Gauthier was recognized for his service to the University and the College of Law at the 1991 Law Alumni Dinner Dance on Nov. 21.

“I am proud to have been a part of the law school for what has seemed a short period of time. I will miss everyone.”

And everyone will miss Phil Gauthier.

Alumni Remain Active in Lend-A-Lawyer Program

Add Denver attorney William J. Klein, JD’67, to the list of College of Law alumni providing pro bono services under the Colorado Bar Association’s Lend-A-Lawyer program. Klein, along with CBA Executive Director Charles C. Turner, JD’71, are serving clients in the Sterling, Colo., area in bankruptcy matters.

John L. Watson, JD’75, Denver, who spent four months as a Lend-A-Lawyer in Monte Vista, Colo., will return to that area for several months of additional service with the program.

Law Alumni Named to Posts by Mayor Webb; Muse is City Attorney

Appointment of Daniel E. Muse, JD’72, as city attorney highlights the involvement of College of Law graduates in the administration of Denver’s new mayor, Wellington Webb.

Muse has been in private practice in Denver since leaving his service on the Colorado Public Utilities Commission, to which he was appointed by Gov. Richard Lamm in 1979. His legal career has also included a term as an assistant Colorado attorney general.

Mary A. Sylvester, JD’85, who has been serving as an attorney with Gray Hahn & Browne, Denver, has been named director of excise and license by Mayor Webb. Her job will be to oversee all city licensing.

Named to head the mayor’s office of contract compliance was Alexis M. Holdman, JD’82. She had been serving in the administration of Webb’s predecessor, Federico Peña, including the position of deputy director of the office.

David M. Gaon, JD’72, a former Colorado state legislator who has been living in California, has returned to Denver to serve as a liaison between the mayor’s office and the Denver business community.
Litvak Accepts Alumni Fund Post

Lawrence Litvak, JD’52, of Denver, has accepted the chairmanship of the College of Law’s 1991-92 Law-Alumni Fund campaign.

He will direct a committee of volunteers whose goal will be to increase both giving to, and participation in, the school’s annual solicitation of financial support from its graduates.

Litvak succeeds Albert Brenman, JD’53, of Denver, who chaired the Law Alumni Fund for the past two years as well as in 1979-81. Brenman chaired the Law Alumni Council from 1981-83 and continues to serve as an honorary member of that group.

“We welcome Larry Litvak’s acceptance of this very important assignment for the College of Law,” Dean Dennis O. Lynch said. “His leadership and enthusiasm will greatly enhance the success of the Law Alumni Fund during the coming year.

“And, of course, we are deeply grateful to Al Brenman for his loyal and ongoing efforts that benefit the College in many ways.”

Litvak has his own law firm in Denver. He is a member of the American Academy of Matrimonial Lawyers as well as the Academy’s Colorado chapter. He is a member of the American, Colorado and Denver Bar Associations and serves as a member of the National Panel of Arbitrators for the American Arbitration Association. He has lectured and written on numerous family matters on local and national levels.

Litvak also serves the College of Law as a current member of the Law Alumni Council.

Law Alumni Receptions Held in Several Cities

Several receptions for College of Law alumni have been held around the country in recent months.

On May 15, Jonathan, JD’71, and Constance Cox, JD’78, hosted a reception for Dean Dennis O. Lynch, Professor and Dean Emeritus Robert B. Yegge, and Professor Ved P. Nanda, at their home in Atherton, Calif. Deans Lynch and Yegge were honored May 16 at an alumni reception held at the City Club in San Francisco.

Drake De Lanoy, JD’53, was host for a reception of Las Vegas, Nev., area law alumni, which was held June 13 at his law firm offices. Dean Lynch was a special guest at the event.

Dean Lynch spoke at a luncheon meeting of alumni held Oct. 16 during the annual meeting of the Nebraska State Bar Association in Omaha.

Dean Lynch and Professor Nanda were honored at a reception held Nov. 4 at the Regency Hotel in New York for College of Law alumni in the area.

Hoffman, Laugesen, Wilson Honored by Denver, Colorado Bars

Colorado Trial Lawyers, and state chair of the Colorado Chapter of the American College of Trial Lawyers.

Hoffman remains active at the law school. In August he completed service on the Law Alumni Council where he served two three-year terms.

Laugesen has served as chair of the Colorado supreme court civil rules committee since 1982, is a member of the court’s appellate rules committee and has served on other committees dealing with Colorado’s rules in litigation. He served as a member of the Governor’s task force for insurance and tort reform and the Colorado Insurance Commissioner’s ad hoc committee to revise motor vehicle insurance regulations. Laugesen has served on countless committees and sections of both the DBA and CBA. He is a partner with the firm of Anderson, Campbell & Laugesen.

Laugesen serves as a lecturer at the College of Law and last year was a senior attorney for the school’s new Lawyering Skills Program.

The Outstanding Young Lawyer Award is given for outstanding community and professional service and leadership. Wilson “has exhibited the drive, energy, compassion and youth that embodies the award.” He was instrumental in forming free Brown Bag Seminars for the area’s young attorneys and an ethics symposium which brought representatives from other professions to discuss ethical issues. As director and general counsel for the Activities Youth Center in Ft. Collins, Colo., he has assisted in developing alternatives for youth.

Wilson was recently chosen for a Rotary International scholarship to spend six weeks in India as part of an exchange program.

Among other citations presented at the DBA’s June 19 luncheon, which celebrated the group’s 100th birthday, were the following:

First Black DBA member, The Hon. James C. Flanagan, JD’46, Denver; first Asian-American DBA member: Georger Koshi, JD’40, of Seattle, Wash.; Donald Loyd, JD’86, and L. Robert Murray, JD’90, the first two Native American DBA members.
Connie B. Hyde, JD'81, vice chair of the Law Alumni Council, has been elected to chair the group in 1991-92. She succeeds James C. Owen, Jr., LLB'56, who has served as chairman the past two years.

Hyde, a partner at Gorsuch, Kirgis, Campbell, Walker & Grover in Denver, is joined in the Council’s officer ranks by Robert S. Appel, LLB’52, who was named vice chair, and Debra K. Wilcox, JD’86, who was named secretary. All assumed their posts at the close of the Council’s semi-annual meeting held Aug. 3 at the College of Law.

Six graduates were elected to new terms and two were re-elected to service on the 27-member Council. Beginning new terms were the Hon. Robert H. McWilliams, Jr., JD’44; Ralph G. Torres, JD’71; John L. Breit, JD’74; Susan N. H. Dixon, JD’84. Laura B. Kirlin, JD, and Shannon C. Thompson, JD, were named to represent the Class of 1991 on the Council. All are from Denver.

Completing terms on the Council were Clarence L. Bartholic, LLB’25; Daniel S. Hoffman, LLB’58; Richard F. Mauro, JD’70; Theodore Allegra, JD’71; Theresa Roche, JD’90.

 Relationships between the College of Law, the practicing bar, and law students were major areas of discussion at the Aug. 3 Council meeting. Specifically, members concentrated on the educational experience of the evening division; how the faculty relates to the Bar as a whole; and how to improve the relationships with part-time faculty.

The discussion was designed to complement the work of an ad hoc faculty committee which is studying the interrelationships of alumni (the Bar), faculty, and students. Professor Lawrence P. Tiffany is chair of the committee.

While no formal position statements were prepared, there was agreement that there is a need to identify ways to improve the dialogue and involvement between the school and the legal community. There was a common thread that the law student experience should not stop at graduation, but that it should be ongoing, prompting a greater alumni involvement with the school.

Finesilver Lectures

In addition to the lectures, Judge Finesilver is presenting informal seminars for students in the school’s lawyering skills classes.

Judge Finesilver is a graduate of the Westminster Law School, now a part of the DU College of Law. He began his distinguished judicial career in 1955 as a Denver county judge, serving in that post for seven years. He served on the Denver district court bench from 1962-71, when he was appointed to the U.S. district court. He has served as chief judge since 1982.

Judge Finesilver has been active in numerous civic, legal and judicial organizations and activities and has received many awards in recognition of his involvement and service. He has also authored numerous articles about a variety of legal topics.

The topics of his first two presentations were “Making Life and Death Decisions in the 1990s. Whose Life is it, Anyway?” and “Interviewing Employees of an Adverse Corporation: Good Advocacy or Unethical Conduct?”
Mary Lathrop Trailblazer Awards

Women's Bar Honors Four DU Attorneys

There was a strong University of Denver College of Law presence when the Colorado Women's Bar Association inaugurated its annual Mary Lathrop Trailblazer Awards during its annual convention in June.

The Award is named in honor of the 1896 DU law graduate and the initial four recipients are also DU alumnae.

The 1991 winners were Elizabeth Adams Conour, 81, Del Norte, Colo., LLB’36 of the Westminster Law School; Elizabeth L. Guyton-Girch, 74, Rocky Ford, Colo., JD’41; Helen T. Street, 78, of Denver, JD’39. Estelle L. Hadley, JD’31, Westminster Law School, was honored posthumously.

The awards will be presented annually to women who have blazed new trails in the legal profession in Colorado, exemplifying the spirit and strength of women like Mary Lathrop, who was truly a trailblazer.

* * *

Mary Florence Lathrop was first at many things in her lifetime:

Colorado’s first female lawyer; first woman to be admitted to the U.S. Court of Appeals; first woman to argue before the Colorado Supreme Court; first woman to be admitted before the U.S. Supreme Court (1917); first woman member of both the Colorado and Denver Bar Associations; one of the first two women to join the American Bar Association (1938).

Born in Pennsylvania, she moved to Colorado for her health. This unique lady had a thriving practice, specializing in probate and real estate. She resented being called a “woman lawyer.”

“I’m either a lawyer or I’m not,” she once remarked. “Don’t drag my being a woman into it.”

She received an Honorary Doctorate from DU in 1942. Lathrop was the first recipient of the University’s coveted Evans Award, the highest award given by the school’s alumni association and was president of the Law Alumni Association in 1920. She died in 1951.

* * *

Mrs. Conour, her husband, Richard E. Conour, LLB’26, have practiced law together in Del Norte, Colo., since 1937, except for the years he served as a district court judge. She focuses her practice on real estate matters.

Mrs. Guyton-Girch began private practice in Rocky Ford, Colo., in 1943. She is retired but is active in the affairs of the Girch Center in La Junta, Colo., which she established in memory of her second husband. The Center serves as an educational facility for developmentally disabled persons of all ages.

Mrs. Street was unable to obtain employment after her law graduation “because she was a woman.” Mary Lathrop refused to hire her because she “wore lipstick.” Mrs. Street has played an active volunteer role in Denver, serving on the boards of numerous community organizations, including the presidency of the Denver Symphony Association. She developed a part-time private law practice in the areas of trusts and estates.

Mrs. Hadley died Feb. 9, 1991, at the age of 83. Her career included law practice with her first husband, Frank S. Morrison, LLB’27. The couple later lived in Washington, D.C., and in El Salvador. Divorced in 1952 she returned to Denver where she practiced in the Commerce City area. She remarried in 1958 and became active in community affairs. In the 1960’s she served as a deputy district attorney in Adams County and as assistant city magistrate in Commerce City.

Women’s Bar Funds Robbins Scholarship

The Colorado Women’s Bar Association Jennifer Robbins Fund has established a new scholarship award at the College of Law. It honors Jennifer L. Robbins, JD’79, who died of cancer in 1987 in Maryland.

The Jennifer Robbins Fund, the charitable arm of the CWBA, was founded in 1987, evolving from the efforts of Jeanette K. Bernstein, JD’79, of Denver, to establish a scholarship fund in memory of her friend.

Always an activist, Robbins’ various projects included anti-poverty programs, mental health projects, distribution of legal and medical services, and civil rights for women and minorities.

The Fund supports second- and third-year women law students who demonstrate financial need and who are members of the CWBA.
Task Force on Domestic Violence Evidences College's Commitment

The College of Law is continuing a strong involvement with domestic violence issues by sponsoring a community outreach program that will address, through extensive dialogue over the next year, the mediator's role in situations where a history of violence between participants is found.

The College's involvement in domestic violence evolved through sponsorship of a conference on "Domestic Violence and Child Custody" and guardian ad litem training programs, conducted in the past year-and-a-half through the school's Institute for Advanced Legal Studies (IALS).

Also, Susan E. Barber, director of the institute, was instrumental in the College's co-sponsorship with the Colorado Department of Health, of the "Domestic Violence and Child Custody" and guardian ad litem training programs, conducted in the past year-and-a-half through the school's Institute for Advanced Legal Studies (IALS).

In recognition of their work in the area of domestic violence, the College of Law and IALS Director Susan E. Barber were honored, among others, at a Sept. 19 reception at the Governor's Mansion, sponsored by the Colorado Department of Health.

Mediation Organizations and the Colorado Domestic Violence Coalition.

"These programs have been focused on a multiprofessional approach because we need to be creative as professionals about how we respond specifically, in light of the limited resources that exist. That's part of our obligation as an academic institution. We need to make sure people are talking together, what language is being used, and what resources are involved," Barber said.

IALS uses this multiprofessional approach and contributes its resources to areas other than domestic violence. After last year's successful conference on "Airlines and the Future of Aviation," spearheaded by Law Professor Paul S. Dempsey, the Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum will be co-sponsoring with IALS a national convention on airlines and the future of aviation, in Washington, D.C., May 28-29, 1992.

Other important programs sponsored by IALS have addressed such issues as Rocky Flats, the Clean Air Program, child support, and joint custody. "With IALS, in general, we want to provide education that will enhance the performance of legal professionals and that education can take many different forms," Barber said.

Protection of Human Rights Requires Reevaluation of International Law Norms

Ved P. Nanda

Events in Yugoslavia and other troubled nations have prompted a searching reexamination of some nebulous concepts of international law. Two such concepts — humanitarian intervention and self-determination, including the right to secede — were the subjects of discussion at an International Congress on the Law of the World, held in Barcelona, Spain, in October 1991.

Several hundred jurists representing 100 countries at the World Jurist Association’s Barcelona Congress failed to arrive at a definitive conclusion on endorsing either the right to secede or to intervene. The timing of the Congress coincided with the ongoing civil war in Yugoslavia. Several attempts at halting the conflict and arranging a cease fire had failed. The long-term prospects for a peaceful solution seemed dim. Croatia’s parliament had voted to secede from Yugoslavia, confirming its earlier declaration of June 25, under which it proclaimed Croatia as a sovereign state. There was a subsequent agreement with the European Community for a three-month moratorium on further independence moves. But that period expired at midnight on Oct. 7, and according to Radio Zagreb, the decision to secede took effect immediately.

The European Community’s efforts to mediate the dispute between Yugoslavia’s federal government and President Franjo Tudjman’s Croatia have yet to find a formula which will ensure a lasting cease-fire. The EC’s threats of trade and economic sanctions against Yugoslavia have had little effect on the ongoing war. The EC has considered several options, including cutting off oil supplies to Yugoslavia. There is sentiment among some EC countries to involve the United Nations in the sanctioning process.

The Republic of Slovenia has also taken first steps toward secession by the decision to introduce its own currency, the tolar. Serbians have by and large accepted Slovenia’s secession, but they are violently opposed to Croatia’s efforts to secede. The reason lies in a major difference between Slovenia and Croatia — there are few non-Slovenes in Slovenia but 600,000 Serbs who live in Croatia claim their own right of self-determination.

No country has recognized either Croatia or Slovenia as an independent country. The European Community members are in accord with withholding recognition until the Yugoslavs have reached agreement among themselves.

Meanwhile, the Europeans are doubtful that a European peacekeeping force would be acceptable to either party. The animosities run deep. There is too much history and too little tolerance or forgiveness. There is little interest in seeking peaceful accommodation of contending claims.

The Yugoslav tragedy has challenged existing rules of international law — which look with disfavor on both the right to secede and on intervention in the internal affairs of a country.

There was widespread concern at the Congress with the rising tide of nationalism and growing ethnic tensions in many parts of the world. No consensus was reached on a set of standards to determine the validity of a group’s claim to secede. But there was agreement that aspirations for keeping ethnic identities intact and for further nurturing them can be accommodated by adequate protection of minority rights within pluralistic societies.

A consensus was also apparent that there must be a limited right to intervene. Many speakers referred to the recent military coup in Haiti, the tragedy of last year’s civil war in Liberia, and the recent military rampage in Zaire. They suggested that when egregious violations of human rights occur in a country, it is not only the right but the duty of the world community to intervene to halt such violations. The United Nations and regional organizations such as the Organization of American States and the European community are the appropriate bodies to undertake humanitarian interventions.

The recent transformation in the world community requires a reappraisal of appropriate laws and remedies. Humanitarian intervention and self-determination are two such principles which must be given recognition and legitimacy to ensure protection of fundamental human rights.

Nanda Named to Direct DU Internationalization

In addition to his regular duties at the College of Law, Professor Nanda has been named special assistant for internationalization to the University provost. In this position he will coordinate and encourage international efforts through the University.

Professor Nanda’s appointment is an outgrowth from the International Studies and Activities Task Force, promoted by University officials, which evaluated the state of DU’s international efforts.

"I see my role as a catalyst," Professor Nanda said. "I will try to bridge gaps (between departments and various internal and external groups) and determine how best and most effectively to pool resources."

Nationwide, colleges and universities are "internationalizing," and Professor Nanda believes DU has some catching up to do. He plans to meet with people, departments, and organizations traditionally associated with international issues, as well as those who are new to the field.

Professor Nanda is confident new partnerships will be formed in teaching, research, and study-abroad programs, citing the long tradition at DU of cooperation among disciplines, colleges, and programs.

Nanda Heads World Effort on Refugees, Displaced Persons

Law Professor Ved P. Nanda, along with renowned legal scholars from Poland, India, Mexico, and Canada, is spearheading the writing of the world’s definitive work on refugees and displaced persons.

Produced by the American Society of International Law and funded by the MacArthur Foundation, this work, scheduled for completion this fall, is part of a document on all facets of international law. Researched through international refugee organizations and the United Nations, this bible of international governing rules will be distributed to "influential people in decision-making positions, such as the media, judges, government officials, students and teachers," according to Nanda.

The document ultimately will serve as a resource for the international legal community and interested persons.

Alumni Merit Scholars and Law Alumni Fund volunteers were in the spotlight at a reception Oct. 11 hosted by Dean and Mrs. Dennis O. Lynch at the College of Law. Major donors to the law school were also among the guests.

The event also featured the presentation of a Distinguished Service Award to Albert Brenman, JD'53, of Denver, who has chaired the Law Alumni Fund effort for the past two years. In making the presentation Dean Lynch noted how increased alumni giving has greatly enhanced the College’s total development program.

Dean Lynch presented certificates to each of the Merit Scholars who are provided financial assistance through the Alumni Fund. Among those honored were—

The document ultimately will serve as a resource for the international legal community and interested persons.
The College of Law extends its sincere appreciation to the many alumni, friends, parents, law firms, corporations, and foundations who supported the school during the 1990-91 fiscal year. Contributions from all sources for the year totaled $814,249.

The Honor Roll acknowledges all contributions to the College of Law, including Law Alumni Fund; Named Scholarship Funds; Memorial Gifts; Public Interest Clerkship Program; Mapelli Student Union Fund; Natural Resources Program; Graduate Tax Program; International Legal Studies Program; Masters in Legal Administration Program; Writing Awards; Lectureships; Matching Gifts; Transportation Law Program; Westminster Law Library; and other gifts made through bequests.

The College of Law is especially grateful to those alumni who helped the Law Alumni Fund. Under the direction of Chairman Albert Brennan, JD'53, the 1990-91 campaign contributions reached $216,734.

Law Alumni Fund monies were again designated to the Law Alumni Merit Scholars Program - financial awards to students with outstanding professional promise.

Committee members who assisted with the 1990-91 Fund were:
Arthur H. Anstine, JD'65; Mark H. Boscoe, JD'81; Jack D. Finlaw, Jr., JD'81; Robert L. Frye, JD'60; Nina A. Iwashko, JD'82; Philip E. Johnson, JD'74; Seymour Joseph, JD'81; Patrick K. Kenney, JD'68; David V. Little, JD'58; John W. Low, JD'51; Richard F. Mauro, JD'70; Gilbert F. McNeish, JD'71; Joseph M. Montano, LLB'53; James C. Owen, Jr., LLB'56; Fred W. Vondy, JD'49; Ronald I. Zall, JD'52.

John Evans Society ($10,000 or more).
John Evans, appointed by President Abraham Lincoln as the second Governor of Colorado Territory, founded the University of Denver in 1864.

Henry Buchtel Society ($5,000-$9,999).
Henry Buchtel served as Chancellor of the University of Denver from 1899-1920, the longest term of any Chancellor in the University's history. For the years 1907-09 he served concurrently as Governor of Colorado.

Deans Fellow ($2,500-$4,999). The first Dean of the University of Denver College of Law was Albert Eugene Pattison, who served from 1892-1902. The present Dean, the twelfth in the College's history, is Dennis O. Lynch. He was appointed July 1, 1990.

Fellow of The Inns ($1,000-$2,499). In the British tradition, the Inns of Court were the link between the profession and legal education. The College of Law campus development, known as "In the Tradition of Inns of Court," recognizes the validity of this history.

DU Law Professor Emeritus William M. Beaney was honored at a reception Oct. 10 in recognition of his founding, and continuing support of, the College of Law's Public Interest Clerkship (PIC) program.

Nearly 75 persons including past PIC recipients, agency representatives, faculty, Bar officials, and contributors to the program attended the event held at the Phipps Mansion in Denver.

Dean Dennis O. Lynch noted that Prof. Beaney initiated the PIC in 1984 and two clerkships were available. During the past summer six students served clerkship assignments. Efforts are ongoing to increase annual funding of the PIC program which has experienced strong, growing interest among the DU law student body.

Students serving in the clerkships assist with legal work for a variety of non-profit organizations serving the needy and disadvantaged of Colorado.

Students serving 1991 public interest clerkships, and their host organizations were Ginger Adair, Colorado Lawyers for the Arts; Kathleen Bridges, Legal Center for the Handicapped; Lisa Fine, Children's Legal Clinic; Hollynd Hoskins, American Civil Liberties Union; Kimberly White, Project Safeguard; Helen Ann Yunis, DNA People's Legal Services.
