¹Additional fees not included in the above cost of attendance include: Loan Repayment Assistance Program Fee - $90 (first semester only), Health & Counseling Fee (optional) - $600.

²Health insurance is required to attend Denver Law; you can waive the university's coverage if you have your own. The cost above is for 12 months of coverage (Aug. 1 to July 31).

³An origination fee is deducted from all disbursements of Direct Unsubsidized (1.057% fee) and Graduate PLUS Loans (4.228% fee). The amount above is the average fee paid by students borrowing an Unsubsidized Loan. Actual fees will vary based on amount borrowed.

FINANCIAL AID AVAILABLE

Scholarships: All scholarship aid awarded by Denver Law is merit-based. We do not award need-based grants. Scholarships range from $21,000 to full-tuition for full-time students and $15,750 to full-tuition for part-time students and are renewable provided you maintain a 3.0 cumulative GPA. All students are automatically considered for most merit aid. Scholarships are awarded on a rolling basis until funds are exhausted, so apply early to ensure that funds are available.

Chancellor's Scholarship: The Chancellor's Scholarship is the one scholarship for which you must apply. This full-tuition scholarship is awarded to students with a history of excellence in academics and public service who intend to pursue public interest law careers. To be considered, you must apply on our website by January 15th.

Federal Financial Aid: Federal grant aid is not available to law students. Nearly all federal aid that is awarded is in the form of federally guaranteed loans. To be considered for federal aid, you must file the FAFSA annually at www.fafsa.gov. The priority deadline to file your FAFSA is January 15. The following federal financial aid is available at Denver Law: Direct Unsubsidized Loans, Direct Graduate PLUS loans and Federal Work Study.

Military Benefits/Yellow Ribbon Program: The Post - 9/11 GI Bill provides for up to $26,381.37 in tuition/fees assistance for the 2022-23 academic year. Starting in Fall 2023 - For eligible veterans, the Sturm College of Law and the University of Denver will cover tuition costs over the GI Bill cap, making us a fully-funded Yellow Ribbon institution. If you are 100% GI Bill eligible, then the Yellow Ribbon program will cover your full tuition and fees. More information on VA benefits can be found at www.GIBill.va.gov.
